A: Check your environment variables. You need the system path for hfss already set so that the anssoftfix.com can find where the license is. This problem also can happen when you manually download and extract the hfss setup from the website and it doesn't come with the environment variables. Also for the update, you can also try to download the latest installer for the version you already have (version 15.0, i.e. 14.1 in your case) and follow the same steps above but instead of installing the patch (you don't need that anymore as this is already in the installer) to check if it is the same problem. The small cap stock market is behaving just like its larger and more liquid cousin, with notable correlation between its performance and the S&P 500. The divergence between them over the past five months has been especially sharp with the iShares Russell 1000 ETF ( IWM) trading the same as the iShares Russell 2000 ETF ( IYW) and the iShares Russell Midcap ETF ( IYM) trading at a 4% premium. "I've noticed that, as the market has rallied more than 7%, IWM has rallied more than 4%, so a lot of people say this is a sign of a top that's coming. I don't think that's necessarily true," noted Matt King, head of ETF trading at Tempus Inc., an ETF provider. "You'd have to look at the divergences of a lot of other smaller-cap funds to make a true conclusion," he added. IWM is presently trading just above its 50-day moving average, but not at the levels of its heavier-weighted counterparts. At Wednesday's close, IWM was trading at about 91% its 30-day average, while the Vanguard Small Cap 600 Exchange-Traded Fund ( VBK) was at about 62% of its 30-day average, according to ETFGI. IYM has also been an outlier with its performance, and while the Russell mid cap fund seems to have bottomed at its 200-day moving average, IYM closed at its highest level in about two years. "I'm not saying I think there's a top here; it doesn't have to, but at the same time, there's nothing to say it's not too early to be constructive," warned Mike Bleznak, vice president of ETF d4474df7b8
